

Elaine Walsh graduated with a BA (Hons) in Music from the Waterford Institute of Technology, a Higher Diploma in Education from University College Dublin and a MA in eLearning Design and Development from University of Limerick. She is currently working in the area of eLearning Pedagogy/Academic Management and Development within the Open Education Unit, National Institute for Digital Learning, Dublin City University. Current research interests include designing assessment, support and training assessment designers, and assessment feedback.